Who Reads HealthCare Business News?

With a circulation of over 21,000 healthcare providers, HealthCare Business News (HCB News) magazine reaches virtually every hospital and imaging center in the U.S. Our editorial team’s commitment to delivering fresh, informative articles to this unique demographic creates an ideal advertising environment for companies seeking exposure to medical software and equipment decision-makers.

HCB News is created by an award-winning team of writers, editors and graphic designers with a singular goal of informing and educating a sophisticated audience of healthcare stakeholders. Every issue contains comprehensive feature-length stories by our own reporters, where important industry trends are brought to light through interviews with experts at the top of their field. In addition to our own articles, we work with some of the world’s most reputable hospitals to share exclusive thought leadership bylines from the industry’s most highly regarded and well-known luminaries.

An Audience at the Front Lines

Every issue of our magazine tackles a different theme from all angles (flip to page 9 for our Editorial Calendar) and brings invaluable insight to hospital professionals who count on us to help them make competitive decisions and stay informed. Our advertisers understand that HealthCare Business News provides exceptional access to key decision-makers on the front lines; hospital executives, administrators and department heads who oversee purchasing equipment, parts, software and selecting service partnerships. We also reach the biomedical technicians and HTM team leaders who directly oversee equipment management. Plus, thanks to our annual BPA audits, our demographics and circulation statistics are numbers you can trust.

A Proven Editorial Strategy

Our magazine succeeds by putting a theme in the spotlight for each issue and examining it from all angles. Whether the subject is Pediatrics, MR imaging, Radiotherapy or anything else, it is explored from the perspectives that deliver meaningful intelligence to healthcare leaders.

Our readers also know that depending on their role, (department managers, HTM professionals, C-suite or purchasing leader) we have monthly columns addressing the unique and specific challenges they’re facing. See page 5 for more details.

The Cream of the Crop

What do Mayo Clinic, St. Jude, Mt. Sinai, Brigham & Women’s, Ochsner Health, Stanford Medical, Nicklaus Children’s, Children’s of Philadelphia, Baylor College of Medicine, Yale School of Medicine, Cincinnati Children’s, UCSF Medical Center, Moffitt Cancer Center, Intermountain Healthcare, Wexner Medical Center, Harvard Medical School, Cleveland Medical Center, Levine Cancer Institute and UT Southwestern all have in common?

Aside from being leading academic hospitals and health care institutions, they all employ providers and researchers who contributed to our editorial content.

Popular Monthly Columns and Features

Industry Features
Every month, a major highlight of our magazine is the exclusive in-depth reports our journalist write addressing different aspects of the issue theme. Whether it’s MR safety, biomedical engineering trends, or the emergence of spectral CT, we interview multiple leaders in the field to deliver candid, well-rounded insight to our readers.

What’s New?
We interview leading manufacturers to discover new technology on the market for each of the major imaging equipment modalities. From MR to CT to mammography and more, our “What’s New” articles deliver clear, easy to read insights so that our readers can be better informed about the latest and greatest capabilities of new systems.

Leadership Matters - Exclusive Sponsorship Available

Biomedical Perspectives - Exclusive Sponsorship Available
The roles of HTM professionals and biomedical engineers are changing rapidly. As their departments work more closely with IT, they also seek better relationships with device manufacturers and hospital executives. In “biomedical perspectives” we give the floor to a leading biomed who discusses their own experiences as an increasingly critical member of the hospital team.
